What process does EA use for each project?

a) Assign a project manager

The project manager oversees your project from beginning to end. He or she also communicates with you throughout the process, so you're aware of what's going on every step of the way. His or her responsibilities include:

1. Establish a production schedule and process to meet your specific needs.
2. Allocate the necessary resources.
3. Manage each phase of development and follow-up with involved personnel.
4. Implement quality assurance checks.
5. Report progress to you.
6. Solicit and incorporate your feedback.
7. Deliver the final product.

B) Prepare your files

Once we receive the necessary files from you, we do the following:

1. Confirm which target language(s) you want your product translated into, including, if applicable, which variation of the language(s) — for example, English into Spanish from Argentina
2. Check the integrity of each file. Confirm the file type and make sure we can access it.
3. Create a glossary.

C) Translate accompanying support literature

Once the software and online help are complete, we translate the corresponding documentation. Then we:

1. Confirm the accuracy of the translation and adjust the text if necessary.
2. Re-check the graphics.
3. Finalize the layout. Confirm that the layout is consistent with the original document.
4. Confirm the quality of the finished product. Make sure everything is accurate, consistent, and attractive.
5. Solicit and incorporate client feedback.
6. Check the quality of the new version again.
7. Deliver the final product.
